The rules about social distance vary with different groups of people. You can detect this by watching people's reactions. If you feel safe and they seem not to feel safe, back off. If they invade your space, decide whether to invade back or act otherwise. Turning sideways is an easy alternative for this, as a person to the side is less threatening than a person at the same distance in front of

Emails sent incorrectly formatted with 0D 0A instead of

In some email client s, the sent message body will contain the sequence =0D=0A where you would be expecting a linebreak. The problem is related to content-transfer-encoding - by default in .net 2.0 it's quoted-printable, in old .net it was 8bit.

email mailto link with HTML body Stack Overflow

The "body" field value is intended to contain the content for the first text/plain body part of the message. The "body" pseudo header field is primarily intended for the generation of short text messages for automatic processing (such as "subscribe" messages for mailing lists), not for general MIME bodies.
